Innovations

Transformation (with Gordana Coby) of ECON 1000/1010 to create a quality, interactive, scalable (3000+) student experience in online/blended formats, while addressing academic integrity threats.

Initiated the integration of Moodle with Pearson MyLab Learning Software (across disciplines, including for ECON 1000/1010) to provide a better user experience for students and administrative efficiencies for instructors, 2017/2018.

Narrated Dynamic Graphs (<http://economicsforlife.ca/lecture-slides/>) accompanying Micro/Macro Economics for Life, 2nd edition, Pearson Canada, 2015. For key analytical graphs in the textbook, there is a short MP4 video. In a voice-over, I talk the student through the meaning of the graph, and traces shifts of curves and changes in outcomes. There is a moving cursor directing students' attention to the portion of the graph being discussed in the narration. These MP4 files, which tell the story of each graph, stream to a student's computer or mobile device.

ECON1900/1910 selected for YUELI YUBridge Program for high-achieving international students high-school graduates, combing English language instruction with academic credit, Fall/Winter 2012/2013. Consulted with ESL instructors to redesign course materials to be more ESL-friendly, supervised TA providing supplementary Economics instruction to YUBridge students.

Development (with Kelly Parke of York Faculty Support Centre), of dynamic screen capture system for mobile devices, allowing students to download MP4 files to watch lectures on mobile devices with audio and full dynamic motion of instructor pointing at and highlighting visual images.

Chair, Committee on Undergraduate Education, History of Economics Society (HES). Organized Inaugural Workshop to Promote Teaching of History of Economics, HES Meetings, Duke University, July 2003.

First York University courses to provide website access for students incorporating Real Audio files of lectures (ECON 1000/1010, 1999/2000) and digital whiteboard and integrated PowerPoint/audio/whiteboards streaming files (ECON 1000/1010, 2000/2001).
